Nuts jungle shower guide

The dos and don'ts of ablutions for I'm A Celeb ladies

TELLY FAVOURITE
I'm A Celebrity...

Get Me Out Of Here! regularly dishes up two talking points: the culinary viability of animals' "downstairs" bits, and the simple act of having a wash. By "wash" we of course mean the jungle shower, and the hours of simple entertainment Myleene Klass, Gemma Atkinson and chums have given us men viewers. So in homage – and in the spirit of our special Big Boobs issue – we tapped up Nuts babe Sarah to help us with some jungle shower dos and don'ts.

IT'S HEL OUT HERE!

Catch up with the antics of Helen Flanagan and her fellow jungle-dwellers on ITV1/HD most evenings.

DO: WEAR A NICE, WELL-FITTING BIKINI

At least they match the bikini

DON'T: ADD SHOWER CAP AND GOGGLES

Can you tell we didn't do this in a real jungle?

5 GTA V secrets!

What we've sleuthed about the hottest game on earth!

WE'RE NOW two trailers in, and if you're not as happy as a dog whose master's just got back from Afghanistan, you qualify for a heart transplant. Most excitingly, there are now three playable characters, but here's some stuff you probably didn't know about the epic title, out on Xbox 360 and PS3 in "spring".

THE CARS ARE BETTER!

The fun GTA cars were traditionally "homages" to real-world motors. Now they're instantly recognisable, from an Aston DB5 on a low loader to their V8 Vantage, plus the 9F (an Audi R8), Maserati GranTurismo and Ferrari 458.

"That man stole my car!
But at least he indicated before pulling out"

IT'S THE BIGGEST GTA EVER!

The game world is bigger than the maps of GTA: San Andreas and IV plus Red Dead Redemption put together, including areas set in the fictional state of San Andreas – and you can even scuba-dive right down to the seabed.

"Come down, Barry – Man vs Food's about to start. It's about sausages!"

This year, I'm A Celeb producers spiced up the freefall into camp

THERE'S A NEW WAY TO PLAY!

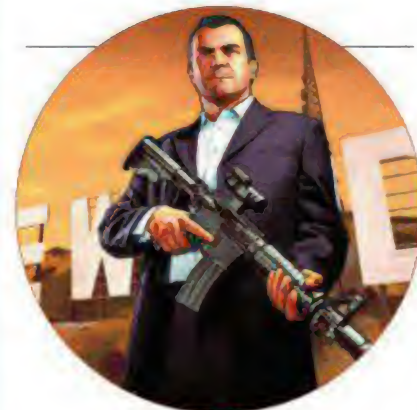

Each character will have a library of individual missions, but you'll also hook up for mega-heists: epic productions that will be multi-part and huge, which you can play through as one character or hot-swap in mid-mission.

YOU CAN FLY A FIGHTER JET!

As Los Santos is such a huge place to get around, air travel – helicopters, private planes, jet fighters – will all be playable, alongside more conventional vehicles like BMXs, quads and, of course, GTA's assorted supercars.

Los Santos had a zero tolerance pigeon policy

Meet the crew!

MICHAEL

An ex-con, Michael's made a mountain of money and has retired to Los Santos as part of the witness protection programme to live off the interest and play tennis. He's then drawn back into a life of crime and helping the FBI.

TREVOR

An ex-military pilot with a criminal past linked to Michael's, Trevor is utterly looney toons – a loose cannon and totally unpredictable. We're first introduced to him on the throne, laying a log of epic proportions.

FRANKLIN

The up-and-coming hood, he's a repo man, stealing cars back for a bunch of dodgy Armenians. The son Michael never had. Rottweiler owner.

Monster anaconda!

Just chilling on a Brazilian riverbank after a long lunch!

LUCKILY FOR this passing scuba diver, this huge anaconda has just eaten and is slobbering on a riverbank, like you would on a sofa, after a roast. The 8m-long Brazilian reptile had probably just snaffled a capybara, which can weigh up to ten stone. Or a small Welshman, if you prefer.

Anaconda facts

- The South American anaconda is the heaviest known snake species. Reticulated pythons can be longer, but these are the heavyweights.
- When mating, up to 12 males can cluster around a female, creating a “breeding ball”, which can remain in place for two to four weeks.
- Being cold-blooded, these big boys need to regulate their body temperature by changing how much of the surface of their skin is exposed to the sun.
- They kill their prey by constriction – wrapping their coils around them, then tightening when the victim breathes out, allowing less air into the lungs with each breath.

“Scuse me! You haven’t seen my dog around here, have you?”

Car's Just For Men
worked a treat

Aventador goes topless!

217mph with the roof down. Sorry, Rooney, it's not for you!

- Before the Aventador was the Murcielago. Lamborghini's flagship offering, it was hairier than Fellaini's bonce, but its only failing was its pathetic roadster roof. It looked like a disposable festival tent from Argos and took about an hour to remove. Plus, with the top in place, the car's maximum speed was limited to 99mph. Not at all cool.
- With over 1,300 hard-topped Aventadors already flogged worldwide, Lambo knew they needed this Roadster to impress. So the roof system had to match the rest of the car's machismo.
- And it does. Weighing just 12kg, the Aventador Roadster's roof is a two-piece targa-style affair made from forged composite carbon-fibre. It can be unlocked and

Buffalo Bill opted for human-skin seats

stowed away in seconds, or so Lambo tell us.

- The excellent news is, it can match the hard-topped model's top whack of 217mph. And although it carries extra weight from strengthening, it'll still get to 62mph in 3.0 seconds compared to the hard-top's 2.9 seconds.
- The Roadster uses the identical 6.5-litre V12 and all-wheel-drive transmission, only now the shouting engine is more, well, shouty, because the rear window can be electronically dropped.
- The rear roof pillars have been reshaped for extra strength, as well as better protection if you decide to barrel-roll it.
- This revised shaping also improves ventilation to the V12, which has a different engine cover. The Roadster sports a "spinal column" with hexagonal windows to gaze down on the motor.
- Just to steal a bit more thunder from the normal Aventador, the Roadster comes with a two-tone finish. Those rear pillars are gloss black, along with the roof and rear window area.
- On sale next summer, the crazily angular Aventador Roadster is set to cost about £35,000 more than its £253,000 brother. So set aside around £290k from your lottery win.

All-new Frankie Boyle gags!

Warning! Not for the easily offended!

On Channel 4!

"Hopefully some of you saw my programme on Channel 4, a channel so cynical I'm surprised they didn't rebrand the Paralympics 'Embarrassing Bodies Sports Day'."

"That's why they invented E4, for morons. And E4+1 for morons who can't tell the time."

On sex tapes!

"I thought a sex tape of me was about to come out, but it turns out those little cameras in the corners of Currys don't even record."

On the Pope!

"If I was the head of a religion that had a rich history in paedophilia, I don't think I'd drive around in something that looked like an ice-cream van."

On the Jubilee!

"I wish the Queen had died the night before the Royal Jubilee. It would have been too late to tell us. They'd have had to hollow out her body and get that guy who plays Gollum to wear her like a suit."

On unemployment!

"If you really want to learn a skill for the future for the coming apocalypse, teach yourself how to deliver the perfect blow job to the forked penis of a Chinese warlord."

On Kate Middleton!

"The hypocrisy of the British press. 'Oh, we won't print these pictures of tits.' I had to go past pictures of tits to read about the tits they wouldn't print. I went past good tits to read about sh*t tits."

On the Queen!

"The Queen looks like a stamp that's been in the wash. There was talk of buying her a yacht as a present. She's 80! Stick a Cornetto on a pony's head and tell her it's a fking unicorn."

On fish!

"Have you seen those tanks you stick your feet into and the fish eat the dead skin? That's degrading. That's one step above having your asshole pecked clean by an eagle."

On documentaries!

"Did you see that documentary about assisted suicide? I couldn't watch the bit where the old guy died because I was coming so hard my glasses fell off."

On English footy!

“The English got really excited just because Wayne Rooney nodded in a goal that could have been put away by Stephen Hawking during a power surge.”

“I wouldn’t p*ss on John Terry if he was on fire. If I’d been drinking heavily all day, I had to queue to get into the bathroom and John Terry was on fire in the toilet bowl, I’d use the sink.”

On laptops!

“They say that the Wi-Fi signal from laptops might damage sperm. I’ve been checking my sperm on my laptop and it seems to be fine. If anything, it’s the laptop that gets damaged.”

On boob jobs!

“Do you know what they did the first boob job on? A dog. It didn’t win Crufts but it did win Miss Glasgow 1975.”

On Peter Kay!

“He does a lot of nostalgia, Peter Kay. I could do that. ‘Do you remember when Peter Kay was good?’ There you go.”

On the Olympics!

“The Olympic torch came through Glasgow, followed by a junkie with a giant spoon.”

“I thought the 100 metres final would have been better if everyone was on fire and they were told the finish line was a big pool of water, but actually it was petrol.”

“Do you know who I thought should have done the commentary in the women’s football? Andy Gray with a bottle of wine.”

“Saudi Arabia were supposed to send a women’s team to the Olympics. I was looking forward to seeing their synchronised swimming team in burqas, bobbing about like a tankful of tadpoles.”

“The closing ceremony of the Paralympics was a fking Coldplay gig. I’d rather have seen Stephen Hawking beatboxing. If you’re going to close the Paralympics, at the very least you should form a disabled supergroup. The drummer from Def Leppard. Michael J Fox on maracas. And obviously Dappy.”

On Christians!

“Never trust Christians. Never trust anyone who sings when they’re not drunk.”

The trio behind An Idiot Abroad talk mascots, miniature kettles and munching on testicles!

Hi Ricky, Karl and Warwick! Karl, you look more miserable than ever in the new series of An Idiot Abroad! Why's that?

Karl: I put it down to being away with Warwick. Look at him. He's smiling for no reason. He's got a lot of teeth in that head – it's like he's got a mouthful of Tic Tacs.

Ricky: Karl said he'd never do another series. The original idea was Karl on a bike and Warwick in the basket. I pitched it to Karl and he said, "So I'm doing all the fking pedalling?"

So you two didn't know each other before you went away?

Warwick: The only time I'd met Karl, I sat on his knee.

Ricky: Karl said, "I might do it if I have some company," but that was to get me out there. He thought I'd hate it.

Karl: I thought Warwick had been bullied into it so I texted him saying, "Don't do it if you don't want to."

Warwick: You did that on the trip. You'd go, "You don't want to do it, do you?" because you didn't want to do anything!

Did you think you'd get on OK when you set off?

Ricky: Karl thought Warwick would be a hindrance and he'd have to carry him like it was Vietnam. Warwick was never ill. This annoyed Karl so he slipped him food that he thought would make him ill.

Karl: I don't know why you didn't get ill. You're closer to the floor than me. It's full of filth, the floor. I don't understand it!

What did Karl make you eat?

Warwick: Testicles. Lung.

Karl: That was in China. They'll eat anything there.

Warwick: The testicle wasn't that horrible. It's knowing what it is that's the problem.

Was it interesting seeing what you said about each other on camera when you got back?

Warwick: I thought he'd have done a bit of research on me, but he didn't have a clue. He didn't even know I was in the Harry Potter movies. All eight!

Karl: It was Star Wars that was niggling me. I was five when that came out and you're still going on about it. It'd be like me going, "When I was in Labyrinth..."

Warwick: I was in that as well, actually.

Karl: Honestly?

Ricky: There's a nice bit where you're going up a hill [on a tandem] and Warwick doesn't feel well and he gets upset. Karl can't see he's crying, and says it's like dragging around Henry Hoover...

Karl: What I meant... have you ever vacuumed uphill? Henry does that – you pull it.

Ricky: That is an unkind metaphor to a human being!

What did the locals make of your unlikely twosome?

Warwick: That was one of the reasons I did it, to see how different cultures reacted.

Karl: It took the crowds away from me. It's like when they say, "How do you keep flies out of the kitchen? Put a bucket of sh*t in the lounge."

Ricky: Another wonderful metaphor!

Warwick: There was a place in Macedonia where some gypsy folk thought I was lucky. I watched it back and thought, "How many people are having a touch there?"

Karl: You were like a lucky scratchcard!

Warwick and Karl, is your bromance here to stay?

Karl: You said, "Come round for dinner." I said, "No." We had a brilliant time and I don't think we can top that.

RICKY

“Karl thought he’d have to carry Warwick around like it was Vietnam!”
Ricky Gervais

“It’s the results of your sperm count test!”

Warwick: And so you think dinner won’t happen?

Karl: I do want to see your small kitchen... or were you winding me up about that?

Warwick: I do have a lower kitchen. But you thought I’d have a smaller kettle as well!

● An Idiot Abroad 3, Sky1/HD from Friday 30 Nov, 9pm.

Nuts NEWS

“Turn Magic FM down now!”

And another with Jake Gyllenhaal!

The star on SWAT teams, skinheads and seeing a man die!

Hi Jake! How intense was your preparation to play an LA street patrol cop in End Of Watch?

Preparing for five months for a 22-day shoot is a big commitment. Knowing that you have to craft something in that time brings a specific type of focus. I was with Michael Peña [Jake’s partner in the movie] for about five months on the streets and in fight training and tactical exercises with live ammunition with an LA SWAT team.

What was it like training with the LAPD?

We spent five months on the streets, two or three times a week for 12 hours at a time, with three or four different sets of partners. What Michael and I portray in that police car is, I think, pretty true to life.

Did you ever find yourself in fear for your life?

At times, yes. On my first ride-along somebody was murdered in front of me.

That sounds pretty horrific. What actually happened?

When I witnessed that murder, we were the second car on the scene and I didn’t expect that at all. I don’t really know what I expected – my adrenaline was going the whole time but I didn’t know that that’s what we would run into. As soon as that happened, I went, “I’m just an actor. What am I getting myself involved in?” That was a real turning point for me. I’ve spent most of my life making films, we move on and there’s nothing life-threatening – it’s mostly absurd.

Did it change the way you view LA? After all you are from the city.

I was born in Los Angeles, I grew up in an area that’s nothing like the south-east side of LA and yet it’s only a mile and a half away. Seeing violence that close up, seeing that it’s real and not having it fictionalised or fantasised by press coverage really changed me.

You sport a pretty intense buzzcut. How was it, sporting a proper skinhead for the role?

To be totally honest, it wasn’t anything I really thought about. It was more about making sure that everything we did was true to form. There are things that I see actors doing in movies now that are so not the way that a police officer would behave. I feel like we’ve done a really authentic job of it.

Did it make you feel tougher with your new shaved bonce?

It’s funny because I was doing fight training every single morning, getting the sh*t beat out of me by 14-to-20-year-old kids in a dojo in Los Angeles, so I really didn’t care that much whether my hair was long or short! Having it really short just meant that it was much harder to grab hold of!

Jud continues, "I already had a metal plate in my arm from when I'd broken it before, so they had to take that out and put a new one in. But then I developed compartment syndrome, which is basically excess swelling, and they had to keep the wound open for a month! I had to have nine operations in total."

Am I shallow?

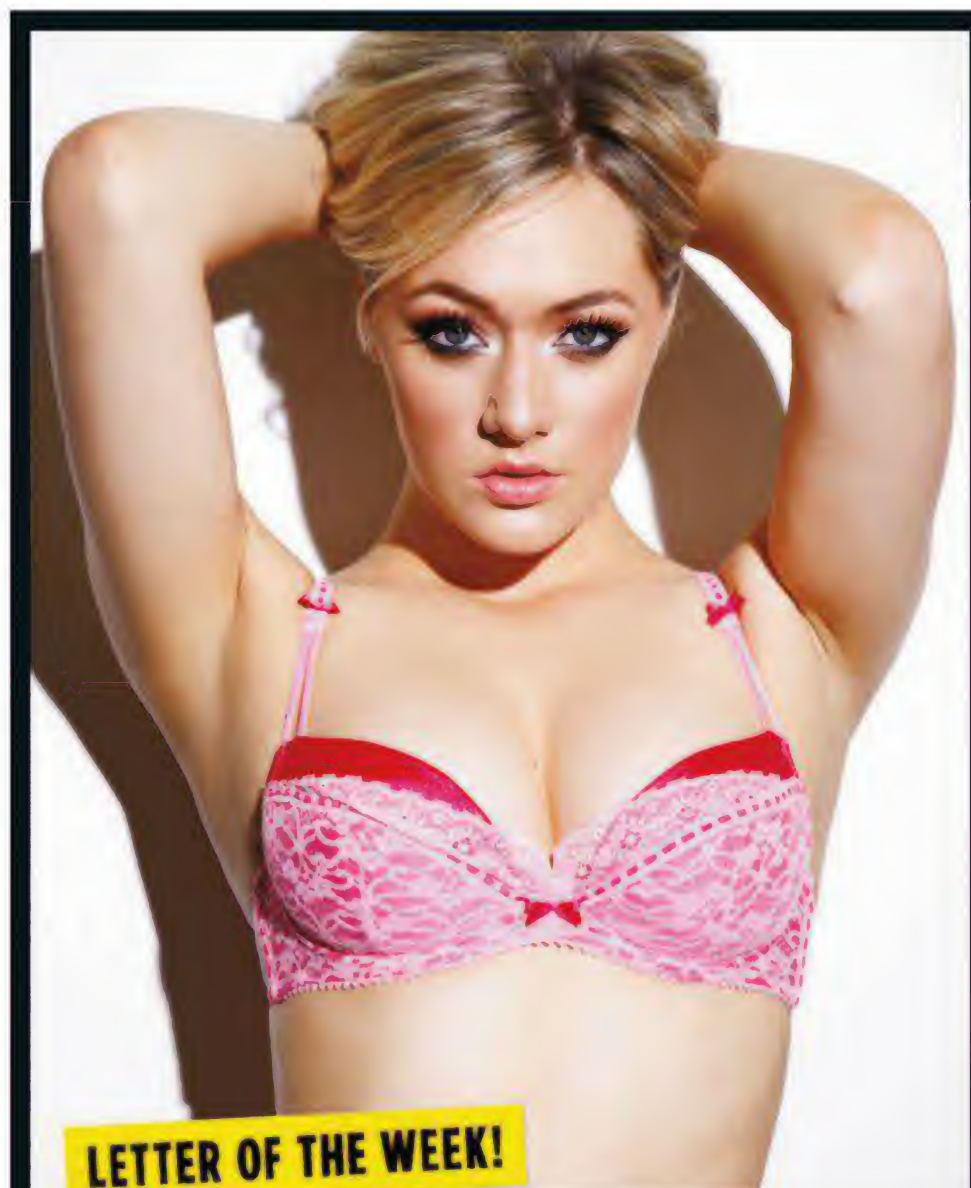

I've fallen for a girl I work with. The problem is, she's not very fit. I know it's shallow but I'm terrified of what my mates would say if I started seeing her. What should I do?

CRAIG Bath

Finding someone whose personality fits with yours is like striking gold, so go and wash your mouth out – then come back with your wallet. Want to spruce your lady up? Take her to a spa, buy her a new wardrobe, and boost her confidence by telling her how wonderful she is, every day. Too much effort? Then let her find someone who will do all those things.

LETTER OF THE WEEK!

Three's a crowd?

My girlfriend recently told me she really wants a threesome with me and my best mate. I think I'm alright with this, but I'm not sure if I really like the idea. Help!

JOHN Newcastle

Are you sure she's your girlfriend? Normally, that kind of sexual activity occurs before you settle down with someone! I suggest you go with your gut instinct. Perhaps suggest a threesome with her best mate and see if she fancies that – because if she doesn't, she may have feelings for your pal. Watch out! This one's trouble.

condoms completely kill my hard-on. What's the solution?

MATT London

Hold back on the sex and explore her: kiss her neck, smell her, find things on her body that nobody knows about. You need more interaction and intimacy, and your penis will soon learn how to stay hard.

I'm addicted to rude sites!

I love having sex with my lady, but I can't seem to stop looking at internet porn. How do I get off it so that I can satisfy my missus more?

JAMES Aberystwyth

It's time to grow up and be a man. Look at your girlfriend and admire her curves, touch her skin, notice her pedicure and the colour of her eyes. These are real things that are right in front of you – things that only you have permission to touch and play with. It's exciting and it's naughty – so get to work, you lazy sod!

The most beautiful brilliant, bouncing boobs!

LACEY BANGHARD

“If I’m with a bum-lover,
my boobs
get ignored!”

Hi Lacey! What's happening?
Hi Nuts! Well, I don't know if I should tell you this but I'm naked at the moment.

Are you? Blimey. Aren't you scared of getting a chill?

No, it's all lovely and toasty in here.

Now, being naked, you must have a great view of those boobs of yours...

Of course. I love my boobs, they're so beautiful and feminine – you don't see men with boobs, do you?

You've obviously not witnessed the Nuts changing room before our weekly five-a-side...

Ha-ha! Not moobs, but boobs! And mine are amazing. They're 26GG, and useful for lots of things.

Like?

I got stopped by the police doing 100mph recently. I should have been banned, but I just pulled down my top a bit, gave the policeman a smile and got off with three points.

And no doubt they're useful in other environments, too?

Oh, you mean in bed? Well you're right, they are. I love having my nipples kissed, they're so sensitive, and they make my orgasms so much stronger!

Do boys like them?

Well, some do, but you're either a bum man or a boob man. When I'm with a bum-lover, my boobs get ignored. It's so frustrating!

And are you an admirer of other ladies' boobs?

Am I? Of course. You know who's got the best? Sam Cooke – hers are as perky as fake ones, but they're real. I always feel them when I see her. I'm sure we could get some pictures taken of that next time it happens!

JON RICHARDSON

Vs the Nuts Question Bucket!

The Lancashire comic spills the beans on Manford, McIntyre and drunk comedians!

THE RULES are simple. We fill our bucket with ridiculous questions, then a famous type picks them out at random and has to answer them!

When you took over from Jason Manford on 8 Out Of 10 Cats, did you demand a new chair?

I didn't make any demands – I was too flabbergasted. They might as well have told me I was going to be a Formula One racing driver or a topless dancer!

You've written a book on how not to behave in relationships called It's Not Me, It's You! What's the best bit of advice you can give us?

Avoid my advice at all costs if you want to be happy. I over-analyse every sentence that's ever been spoken to me by everyone ever and read something negative into it. It's not a sexy trait.

Would Stand Up For The Week be funnier if you could sit down?

No. Comedy's never as funny when you're allowed to sit down. You need to be able to move around to give the impression that you care. They had a chair on the first series and I think we'd all agree it was a better show when it left.

Who's been the most surprisingly funny guest on 8 Out Of 10 Cats?

Stacey Solomon was really funny. I saw her presenting a show called Top Dog Model. I'd been watching it for half an hour before I thought, "What am I doing? I've got loads to do today, and I'm watching a dog do a photo shoot."

Who's the best comedian to get drunk with?

Me! I got drunk after Live At The Apollo and started mouthing off. If I'm going to get drunk, I try to get drunk around people who already know I'm a twerp, rather than people who haven't found out yet.

When you hosted a radio show with Russell Howard, who was most likely to let one off in the studio?

I'm always going to say him, but I've been around worse. I used to tease Russell about his bodily movements and soiling himself and whatnot. I feel bad about it now.

You used to be a chef. What are you having for dinner tonight?

Today I fancy a really, really hot pizza but then, maybe I'll go to the supermarket and get something a bit more healthy. Actually, I won't.

You did a show about OCD. Do you have any habits?

I'd love to say I had funny ones, like picking my nose or leaving out dirty socks, but really my habits are nitpicking and destroying the characters of people I secretly really like. I must be so tense to be around! Sometimes, I'll get halfway through a sentence and say, "I'm sorry, I've no idea why I'm telling you this. I'm just talking absolute sh*t!"

Do you miss living in Lancaster?

When I go back I get emotional. I'll drive past my old house and sit there for hours, weeping in my car. I'm probably on some sort of register!

"Add a little garlic to the questions, then fry, toss and serve"

"Well, I don't have a daily face-cleansing routine so... pass?"

"I think someone's done a sick in my bucket"

What was the funniest thing that happened on tour with Alan Carr?
Probably the time we wandered around Devon trying loads of different types of fudge, then felt incredibly sick at the gig.

TV FUNNYMAN
JON RICHARDSON!

"Nuts? I thought this was for Knitting World magazine?"

On Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow, did he make you act as his butler?

No. But he's well-spoken and exactly how you'd expect him to be.

‘We’re

a few

Taliban.’

We think you might be the guy to help, us out...

Special Forces man Howard Leedham was singled out to lead a special mission...

PAKISTAN, 2003. The mission: disrupt Taliban activity in the badlands. Retired British Special Forces officer Howard Leedham was tasked with carrying out this ferociously risky operation. He tells Nuts how he did it...

Hi Howard. Could you tell us how you came to be leading this special mission?

I went from Royal Navy diver to commando helicopter pilot and then I was a Special Forces officer. I'd been retired five years when I got a phone call from the US military – a secret security division – who I'd previously given some advice to after a plane crash. They told me, "We're having a few problems regarding a project in Pakistan, and the Taliban. We think you might be the guy to help us out." I wasn't that keen, but as soon as I saw all the maps and plans, I started visualising being out there.

So what were you brought in to do?

The war in Iraq was in full swing and all resources had been sent there, but Afghanistan was being ignored. However, the US wanted to disrupt Taliban activity in the mountains on the Pakistan border – a notorious area that's impossible for guards to monitor. Even though there were 80,000 guards, they were recruited from local areas, simply handed an AK-47 assault rifle and told to stand at a post.

There were fewer than 50 of you – how did you control such a lawless area?

You fall back on the ancient Chinese general Sun Tzu's logic: "If you can't be everywhere, make your enemy believe you are." We would organise raids, patrols and checkpoints in villages, up mountains on the border roads. Each time, we would make sure the locals saw us, as we knew they'd feed back to the Taliban.

Was it immediately obvious how dangerous it was out there?

You're dealing with a lawless, aggressive and unpredictable enemy. Not long after we got there, my team were out in a helicopter following a suspicious vehicle. The insurgents opened fire on us and, as we were following so closely, a bullet hit one guy straight through the eye and killed him instantly.

What was an average day like on this mission?

We might be rescuing hostages, stopping insurgent activity, or exposing drug farms that were being used to fund terrorism. Often we'd have the Cessna Caravan – which is a very light, undetectable plane – fly off ahead with heat-seeking equipment to detect a target, and then we'd all follow in. Freeing hostages was the most dangerous part. Two of my men won a bounty – almost two years' salary – for killing a hostage-taker in a shoot-out.

Were the locals hostile or supportive of your presence?

Getting the local tribesmen on side was tricky. I went down to Balochistan [a Pakistani province] to see the general who was in charge of them. His colonel kept blocking all my attempts to meet him. In the end, I just said, "Look, what time does the general take a sh*t?" The Pakistani colonel was dumbfounded, so I carried on. "When he takes his

Leaks within Howard's team led to regular ambush attempts first dump of the day, I'll be outside the door. He's on the toilet anyway, so I can't be wasting his time!" I got the troops I needed.

How did you avoid being ambushed?

In our patrol, only myself and the helicopter pilot would know the site of our attacks. My team would then only see a map of the area – not the specific location. We still had leaks on several occasions – there were leaks within our headquarters in Pakistan.

On one occasion we got called back while on our way to a destination and told, "They know you're coming, it's a trap." We'd have all been shot down if we'd actually arrived.

What about the terrain? Did that present any problems?

The mountains were especially dangerous. One night, when the temperature was below freezing, we were examining a suspicious-looking vehicle using night-vision goggles, around 1,000ft up this mountain, in the pitch black. All of a sudden, the path just disintegrated into shale, my feet went from under me and I was quickly cascading down the mountain towards a sheer face. Out of sheer desperation, I jammed the butt of my rifle into the rock face, and it stopped me. I must have slid 200ft. I had to crawl all the way back up.

Did you have any other experiences that made you fear for your own safety?

We were all loading into the helicopter and I would always make sure I was last to climb on. The crew chief was on a strop [the sling that attaches him to the helicopter] when suddenly the helicopter just took off. The crew chief was panicking as he was still attached to the helicopter. I, meanwhile, was dangling from the bottom of the helicopter, clinging on to a rope and desperately trying to swing my body weight back up into the chopper. If I'd let go I'd have dropped 1,000ft. The pilot didn't even know what he'd done until we got back to base!

Was it difficult getting your hands on all the equipment you needed?

It's just the way it was. There was a war in Iraq and all of the resources were being sent there. I tried to get body armour for our whole team through the US Army, and eventually I was informed it had arrived. "It's on the back of your chair," they said. It was just one suit, for me, so I refused to wear it. Even when we were sent helicopters, they had Peruvian Air Force markings – we'd had to get them diverted from there!

LUCY!

STACEY!

“My boobs

Lucy Collett

Hi Lucy! So, do you love your boobs? Love them? I adore them! They're so beautiful and soft, like mini sofas. When I'm scared I hug them and they give me comfort.

Do you prefer one of the boobs over the other?

No, I don't want one of them getting jealous – that would be really nasty! I love them both equally, they're both nice.

How do you rate your nipples?

They're great, especially when I'm making love...

How?

Well, they're really sensitive, so when I'm having sex it's easier to climax if a bloke is playing with them. Sometimes, I have to tell the fella not to forget them because not every man is as obsessed with boobs as you!

Really? Do these men know what to do with them?

Not always, sometimes they just grab them and it's really painful. I call them my puppies, and you wouldn't grab hold of a puppy, would you?

What about size? We know they're big, but just how big?

They're 30G!

Blimey.

I know, they're absolutely massive – you can see them on Google Maps. I think.

Do you find yourself looking at other girls' boobs?

Of course I do, it's impossible not to in this job – we just go up to each other and feel them. When I do that to my normal mates they think I'm weird.

You work with lots of girls.

Who's got the best?

There's so many to choose from, but I really love Danielle Sharp's – they're beautiful. I've got boob envy! ▶

Stacey Poole

Hi Stacey! We have to admit we're absolutely smitten with your boobs!

Ha-ha! You'll be pleased to know that I love them, too. Big, bouncy and in perfect proportion – they're my beautiful, booby babies!

What kind of things do you get up to with them?

Ooh, lots of things. When I'm watching the telly they hold my tea and toast perfectly. They're incredibly useful in all kinds of situations.

Have you had any mishaps with them?

Oh God, yeah, it's like having to hang around with an incredibly clumsy friend. I once knocked a cocktail over with them. They should come with a health and safety warning, they're that big!

So, do men give your boobs a lot of attention?

Yeah, of course they do, but I tend to end up with fellas who like my bum. It's like they have to be persuaded to give my boobs some loving. It's so frustrating when you've got a chest like mine!

What position do your boobs look best in?

I reckon it's when I'm lying down. They just sit there looking perfect, lovely and very pert. Though they're so big I can't actually see the rest of my body!

Really? We'd never thought boobs could be so tricky.

Yeah, they are. I often can't see my feet as the boobs are in the way! It's a real pain when I'm trying to get my outfit co-ordinated when I go out. Though I do my best by cramming them into tiny dresses, which is something I'm sure you'd love to see! ►

“My boobs are so big I can't see my feet!”

“I love my nipples being kissed!”

Holly Peers

Hi Holly! You're gorgeous, funny and you have the most wonderful boobs. Oh, those boobs of yours...

Hi Nuts! Well they are very special. But it's weird, they change day by day.

Really? We thought that they were pretty much the same whatever the occasion.

Well, depending on the temperature or how I've been lying, they look and feel different – like the seasons. Today, they look amazing, which is good as we're about to shoot in five minutes.

Do you like checking out other girls' boobs?

Of course! All the girls in this line of work are obsessed by boobs. I feel theirs all the time. It's a perk of the job!

What do your regular friends think of that kind of behaviour?

They think I'm weird, but in what we do, it's normal. I'm not shy at all.

We'd gathered that. What do you say to people who assume big boobs aren't as sensitive as small ones?

Oh, mine are incredibly sensitive. When I'm having sex I love having my nipples kissed, and they go really erect. Sex is like a meal and boobs are the tastiest starters you could wish for.

What about clothing? Do you wear items that show them off or keep things more discreet?

On a normal day, I don't wear stuff that really highlights my boobs – I hide them under layers of tops and coats.

Shame.

Don't worry, Nuts – at night I love to wear fitted stuff that really shows off my figure. Nothing too low-cut though, you have to leave some things to the imagination! ►

“My boobs are very big and round!”

Danielle Sharp

Hi Danielle! We're talking about boobs today. And we really want to talk about yours now!

Hi Nuts! I bet you do. Well, just to let you know, my boobs are big and round – very, very round. I think you're going to like them very much.

You could say. Have you had any surgical help to achieve that booby perfection?

No I haven't, my boobs are perfectly natural!

And naturally perfect?

Ha-ha! Actually, when I was younger I wanted to make them smaller but since I started in this job I've decided to leave them as they are.

Thank the Lord for that! Why would you ever want to reduce them? This is madness.

Because they can hurt your back. There's a lot of weight to carry around, you know. Men don't know what we have to go through to satisfy your appetite for big boobs.

You obviously work alongside some of Britain's best boobs.

Any favourites?

Oh, there's loads of girls to choose from. Lovely Lucy Pinder has absolutely amazing boobs, and Holly Peers – hers are just gorgeous. In fact, I'd describe Holly as the Queen Of Boobs! We should all bow down to her.

As for your own, do you like to show them off?

You won't believe this, but I'm actually pretty shy in real life.

No!

Oh, I am, really. I do like to wear slim-fitting clothes that show off my figure, but nothing too obvious. Though you can always see my big boobs in Nuts!

Dave's One Night Stand

DAVE/HD • 10pm

We loved Dan Renton Skinner's turn as Angelos Epithemiou in, er, The Angelos Epithemiou Show earlier in the year – so this, in which the Hammersmith comic does a hometown gig as his shabbily dressed alter-ego, is right up our street.

Young Apprentice

BBC ONE/HD • 8pm

We're at the halfway stage of the "process" and the remaining upstarts in oversized suits have to come up with and pitch ideas for kids' clubs. While one team dreams up a space-themed concept, the other comes up with the idea of an active art class. But will their efforts be enough to impress Lord Sugar? Doubt it.

Flintoff: From Lord's To The Ring

SKY1/HD • 9pm

The second part of the series in which the ex-cricketer turns his hand to boxing sees Freddie go for a gumshield fitting after getting a bust lip. And even though his boxing licence is waiting for approval, he still fits in a round of golf with Harry Redknapp.

CHANNEL 5/HD • 10pm

The makers of Training Day deliver a story that kicks like a mule. The action ramps up through the handheld cameras of cops and gang members, intercut with CCTV footage as Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Pena patrol the mean streets of South Central LA on the trail of dope, money and guns. The actors trained for real and the results are awesome. The cop thriller of the year. ★★★★★

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'I joined the mile-high club'

I WENT to Greece for my summer holidays this year and the excitement started before I landed. I was reading Fifty Shades Of Grey and this hunky guy was watching me. My brain went into overdrive – I pulled a condom out of my handbag and licked it. He almost jumped out of his seat! I walked to the toilet and he was right behind me. We squeezed in and I pulled his trousers down. I got my own jeans down, turned around and braced myself on the sink as he told me to “come faster than I'd ever come before”. Which I certainly did!

Emily via email

'He took off my wet top'

I WAS walking back to my new fella's house one night when it started to pour down. I was soaked. Then my friend's brother drove past in his big Land Rover, grinning out of the window at my predicament. He offered me a lift so I jumped in the back. He kept staring at me and my wet top. He then asked if he could help me off with my wet clothes and I nodded yes. He pulled into a huge industrial estate and parked up, and I jumped into the front seat and we immediately started kissing passionately. Then he began to slowly undress me – and pleased me from head to toe. I'd soon warmed up and never did make it back to my fella's house... ever!

Danielle Dundee

'Three of us got frisky'

IT WAS a late night when me, my girlfriend and a guy friend were getting a train back from the city centre to our suburb. Then the sign went up: “Cancelled.” Disaster! There wasn't another train for an hour. It started getting cold on the platform so, to keep warm, me and my girlfriend decided to show our man friend just how much we liked him. I started kissing him while my friend unzipped his pants. He loved it and put his fingers deep inside me as she started sucking him below. I could feel myself getting wetter when I heard a moan from my friend – he was touching both of us at the same time. The train wasn't the only thing that eventually came that night!

Annabelle Liverpool

'I loved his leather'

I'D BEEN on a few dates with a hot guy who seemed lovely but there was nothing really magical going on. Then as we left a restaurant one evening, I clapped eyes on a big motorbike. “It's mine,” he said. He passed me the spare helmet and I jumped on. Being on the back of that bike, clinging onto him, I could feel his muscular body and the smell of his leathers. I was a horny mess! I started moving my hands all over his body and he abruptly stopped the bike, luckily in a quiet area. He turned to face me and I quickly kissed him, unzipping his trousers and taking his throbbing member in my mouth until he came. We managed to get to my house after that and the sex that night was just as thrilling as the ride!

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Lyla

27 Cheltenham

1 Where's the strangest place you've had sex?

"I had a holiday fling a few months ago, and we thought we'd put on our own entertainment on the main stage in the hotel complex. It was only midnight, so there were a few shocked looks from people walking past!"

2 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?

"I always get amazing reactions when I go down on a guy. I have my own little routine, and it works every time!"

3 What turns you on?

"Sex outdoors really gets me going. I also love it when you know someone could walk in any moment. The idea of getting caught just does it for me!"

4 What's your favourite position?

"I love being on top so that I can control everything, and the guy gets a great view of my boobs bouncing up and down!"

5 Is it better to give or receive?

"A little bit of both is best. Anyone for a 69?"

6 What one thing would you really like to try but haven't yet?

"Either sex on a plane, or a threesome. Maybe both at the same time? Never say never – it could happen!"

7 Ever got it on with another girl?

"Yeah, a few times! Girls are great kissers, and drunken fumbles with friends are always good fun. I don't think I'd ever go out with a girl, but that wouldn't stop me getting up to some naughty fun with one!"

8 What's your favourite role-playing costume?

"Oh, I've got loads, but my favourite would have to be black lingerie, stockings and suspenders, and a whip! Nothing like a bit of S&M!"

9 Have you ever made a sex tape?

"Yes. Let's hope it doesn't ever get out! I mean, what would my mother think?"

10 What's the rudest thing you've done?

"Given a man oral on a train, with someone in the seat behind! I have a feeling they knew exactly what was going on, but that just turned me on even more!"

"Sex outdoors really gets me going!"

Xabi Alonso: ‘The Prem improves Spanish players!’

The Real Madrid midfield general on owning Shearer's shirt – and his powerful beard!

➔ Hi Xabi! What are the major differences between La Liga and the English Premier League?

The Premier League's more physical. Foreign players have to learn to adapt quickly to that side of things. Also, the atmosphere's different, not just at the big clubs but also the smaller ones, too. A team could be 5-0 down and the fans will still be singing.

Are you still in touch with anyone at Liverpool?

Sami Hyypia's a very good friend of mine. He's one of the most competitive players I've ever met and a great man off the field.

What do you make of their early season struggle?

Liverpool are a club that expect to win things. The Premier League has many strong teams but I think they can make it back into the top four. What's happened off the pitch is more important this season. I'm talking about the fans and families getting justice for Hillsborough.

Was your time at Liverpool quite frustrating?

Of course it wasn't. In my first year there I won the Champions League! The fans of Liverpool always offered unconditional support to me. I'll always be a Liverpool fan.

Who are your favourite players in the Premier League?

I think David Silva is an excellent player. I expected him to do well in England and he has. Of all time, I'm a fan of Alan Shearer, Roy Keane and Paul Scholes. I've got shirts from all of them!

What's Jose Mourinho like when he loses his temper?

He encourages the football club to be run like a family – and like a family if there's ever any issue we sort it out in private. He's a man who knows the game very well but I feel that the relationship he has with his players has been a big part of his success.

Xabi was famous for his “girlfriend in a strop” pose

Who's better: Lionel Messi or Cristiano Ronaldo?

Phew! Well, I train with Cristiano every day so I see just how special he is. They both have many playing years left, but already they have taken their place in history.

Why is Spanish football so strong right now? What are English teams doing wrong? Actually, I think the Spanish team was helped by some of its players performing in England. We learned the physical side of the game and also the pace of the Premier League. Guys like myself, Torres and Fabregas have all taken a lot from our English clubs and it's made us more complete players.

Man City had problems with Carlos Tevez. Is it tricky to keep every player happy? When you play for a club like Real Madrid you want to win

XABI IN ISTANBUL!

Alonso was part of the Liverpool side that won the Champions League trophy in 2005.

“I will always be a Liverpool supporter!”

“Kick me again and you’ve had it, pal”

Beards in football!

Alonso’s not the only player with winning whiskers...

DAVID BECKHAM
LA Galaxy

Becks grew a bushy number back in 2009 but it hasn’t won him much on the field. Still, at least it’s better than the corn rows.

ANTONIO NOCERINO
Milan

Simultaneously bushy and neat, like a well-trimmed hedge. Hasn’t won anything yet, but his facial topiary wins our ultimate respect.

ANDRE VILLAS-BOAS
Spurs

AVB’s beard is very well-maintained. And he’s the youngest coach to win a European title, so it must have magic powers, too.

DJIBRIL CISSE
QPR

The Lord of the Manor of Frodsham has been known to bleach his beard. Such silly behaviour is the reason QPR may be doomed.

OLOF MELLBERG
Villarreal

Mellberg is the cross between a North Sea fisherman and a German U-boat commander. He won two titles in Greece with Olympiakos.

ALEXI LALAS
LA Galaxy

Lalas played in the 1994 World Cup and was the man who signed Beckham to LA Galaxy. We don’t know if his crazy beard was a factor.

everything. That means 60 games a season, potentially, and nobody can play that. Of course, you always want to be playing – but that’s just not realistic.

Is it true Mourinho creates dossiers on the opposition? Well, he’s always very well prepared. We go into games knowing all we can about the opposition and that’s down to the coach.

Your beard’s rather impressive. Do you have a facial hair hero?

To be truthful, I’ve not really thought about it, but the national team boss, Vicente Del Bosque, told the Spanish press I became a better player when I grew a beard!

- Manchester City vs Real Madrid is on Sky Sports 2/HD on Wednesday 21 November at 7.45pm.

Balotelli's bonkers Bentley!

Flamboyant Man City striker ruins a perfectly lovely car!

YOU PROBABLY can't see it, but right here on this page is actually a perfectly camouflaged Bentley Continental GT. Squint and you may be able to make it out, blending seamlessly in as it does at City's training ground car park.

It is, of course, footy clown Mario Balotelli's latest lark, putting a wrap on his beautiful GT that looks like it could have been painted by a class at his local nursery school. The car's list price is £151,100, but as Mario proves, you can't put a price on class...

Hang on... surely
of some bushes?

It took me 20 minutes to find the boot"

KAMMY!

He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

"Two lager tops, cheers!"

'Give Adkins more time!'

Saints boss has earned the right to the club's backing!

➔ AFTER LAST weekend's game between QPR and Southampton, one of Mark Hughes and Nigel Adkins could now be without a job.

What you have to remember about Adkins is he's won back-to-back promotions. Of course, Southampton don't want to go back down to the Championship, but they're also punching above their weight. If I was the Saints chairman, I'd think Adkins deserves to be given an opportunity in January to bring in the players he thinks can make sure the club stay in the Premier League, because he's done more for that club than the club have done for him.

Hughes' situation's different because with the players he's been allowed to sign and the wages he's been allowed to give them, there's a pressure to produce the goods. The other problem Hughes has is Harry Redknapp wants to a new job in London, and QPR's chairman has lots of money. If anything happens with Hughes, he can never say he wasn't given time, or the chairman didn't back him.

"Boss, why are you talking to my shoulder?"

'Super-subs have to know their place!'

EDIN DZEKO scored after coming off the bench for Man City again against Spurs, but he's said he doesn't want to be known as just a sub. I understand all professional players want to play from the start, but to make the impact has demands a certain acceptance from Edin.

Javier Hernandez at Man United has looked at his situation and thought, "I'm playing for Man United – I can't knock on Sir Alex's door and complain." He's just happy to be there and that's why he plays so well.

UNBELIEVABLY GOOD!

ZLAT'S AMAZING!
After Zlatan Ibrahimovic scored that wonder goal against England, at the opening of Sweden's new stadium, they might as well name it the Zlatan Ibrahimovic Stadium!

UNBELIEVABLY BAD!

REF OFF!
Refs don't seem to know the difference between diving and being fouled. They really need to be shown some videos of what is a dive and what isn't.

THE BIG MATCH!

"Leave me alone - I'm gamboling!"

'Stick with England!'

WILFRIED ZAHA was called into the England squad, even though he can play for the Ivory Coast, but he only got five minutes. They need to give him a proper game because if I was Didier Drogba, I'd be knocking on his door! I'm a firm believer that if you play for England at any level, that's your country. I turned down the opportunity to play for my dad's country, Sierra Leone, because I consider myself an Englishman. It was an easy decision for me. Stick with your country!"

"Yes, my legs are on sideways. What of it?"

Chelsea vs Man City

SUNDAY 25 NOVEMBER •
Sky Sports 1/HD, 4pm

I can see Man City remaining unbeaten until the turn of the year. Whether Dzeko likes being a sub or not, the champions have got more in their armoury than anyone else in the Premier League.

KAMMY'S PREDICTION: 1-2

Key man

Joe Hart, Vincent Kompany and David Silva are out of sorts so it might be down to Edin Dzeko to do it again.

Outside the Box

JULIAN PUCKETT & STEPHEN GULBIS

Congratulations big fella! I hear you've just had a new addition to the family?

Twins actually, boss. Mum's feeding them right now...

EXCLUSIVE!

Hatton: 'I want a fifth world title!'

Nuts bags an exclusive one-on-one with the Hitman on the eve of his big comeback!

➔ Hi Ricky! How badly have you missed the buzz of a big fight?

To be honest, I've missed it massively. Boxing's very, very addictive. When you've had the success that I've had and thousands of people are cheering your name, that sort of thing is hard to come by. That's why I suffered so badly with the defeats. I'm looking forward to getting in that ring again with the crowd roaring. I'm in the best shape I've ever been. I did a press workout the other day and everyone's jaws hit the floor seeing the condition I was in.

What's changed between your last fight and now to make you think that it's the right time to step back into the ring?

The last fight, my training camp was an absolute disaster. I'm not saying that's the reason why I got beaten, I was defeated by Manny Pacquiao so there's no shame in that. But I peaked too soon – I needed a rest and the trainer didn't allow me that luxury. So ultimately by the time I got in the ring, I think my girlfriend could've knocked me out!

When was the moment you decided you needed to get back into boxing?

It was a build-up of several things. I became a boxing coach so I was in the gym Monday to Friday and I started to lose a bit of weight without realising it. As I got fitter, I started to think, "Can I end my career the way it always should have ended, instead of on me back against Manny and with everyone reading all that bad stuff in the papers?"

Is there a pre-fight ritual you'll never change?

I used to have a full English breakfast on the morning of every fight. Ultimately, it was crazy. I'm a little bit older now and a little bit wiser, and a coach in my own right, and all that fat stuff is absolutely no good whatsoever. I think I'll be sticking to my porridge!

Where has been the greatest place to fight?

For a kid boxing out of Sale West Working Men's Club, to have the fortune of seeing my name up in lights on the strip of Las Vegas, I think that's one of the proudest moments I've ever had. But you can't beat fighting in your own country.

"So, Ricky, how do you feel about your ban on takeaways?"

They really raise the roof in Manchester and I think they'll raise it more than ever on Saturday.

Who is the greatest fighter ever? And pound for pound, who's the best in the UK now?

I think the greatest boxer was Sugar Ray Robinson because he could fight, he could box, he had speed and he had power. In the UK now, it's Carl Froch. Nobody can say a bad word to me about Carl. He's never ducked anyone, he just fights whoever's put in front of him and that's what makes this sport so fantastic.

What does the future hold for you boxing-wise?

I'd like to win another world title. I don't plan on tarnishing my career, I plan on enhancing it. To win four world titles in two weight divisions, have all my problems, then come back and win another one would really add to my legacy.

Would you like to fight Manny Pacquiao or Floyd Mayweather Jr again?

Yes, but I've been out three years so before I start calling out Manny, Floyd, Amir Kahn and people like that, I need to make people believe again and show them what I've got left.

Is there a "loud shirt party" planned for after the fight?

I think the days of after-fight parties where I just basically went on the p*ss non-stop are a thing of the past. I'll be having a little celebratory

HATTON'S KILLER CAREER!

Ricky's had a total of 47 fights in his career. He's won 45 of them, 32 by knockout.

drink but everything in moderation. I should have done that when I was 18!

Thanks, Ricky! Last question: what were you doing when Manchester City won the league title in injury time?
I was actually at the game. It was absolutely brilliant! And then I spent the evening with all the City players down at Manchester town hall, along with my mate Liam Gallagher, so you can imagine how that night went!

- Hatton vs Senchenko is live and exclusive on Primetime on 24 November. See www.primetimeboxing.co.uk for more details.
